CHURCHILL VISITS BARUCH—British Prime Minister Winston Churchill (right) arriving in New York from Washington, is greeted by elder statesman Bernard Baruch. Churchill will spend two days as guest of his old friend, Baruch. In rear (center) is Churchill's son-in-law, Christopher Soames, who arrived from London with secret parcel for the prime minister.

Truman Reported Prepared to Ask Budget of 85 Billion But Shies Away for Any New Taxes

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Truman's financial chart for the government next year adds up to about a 15 billion dollar deficit, officials said today.

That would be two to three times bigger than any red ink operation since World War II. It probably would swell the national debt close to or above the present legal limit of 275 billions.

Authorities familiar with the figures but preferring not to be quoted directly told a reporter this is the picture President Truman will present to the election-year congress in his annual budget message one week from today, barring last minute changes:

Will Spend $5 Billion
1. Government spending in the fiscal year beginning July 1 will reach about 85 billion dollars, up from an estimated 70 billions for the current year and only 45 billions last year.

2. Present tax laws will bring in about 70 billions next fiscal year, leaving an estimated deficit of approximately 15 billions if conditions remain unchanged.

3. Although the administration for several years has insisted on taxes high enough to balance the budget, Mr. Truman in this election year won't demand excise or income tax boosts to close the gap between outgo and income.

Tighten Loopholes
4. Instead, the administration will press for tighter tax enforcement and closing of alleged "loopholes". If the national economy continues to expand rapidly, and congress approves the proposed tax reforms, the projected deficit may be reduced to near 10 billions.

5. Large portions of the 85 billion dollar spending program were authorized by congress in past years. Requests for new appropriations will total only about $3 billion less than Mr. Truman sought for the current year.

Figuring probable government spending during the coming year at 80 to 83 billion dollars, The Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report said that will mean a minimum of $513 for each man, woman and child in the country, or $2,001 per family.

More Taxes "Out"
The president's political advisers were said to have cautioned against a useless all-out drive for higher taxes this year. Key congressmen in both political parties have made it clear they don't expect congress to favor new taxes.

The United States defense buildup is the key to the budget. Officials say Mr. Truman will estimate direct military spending at roughly 59 billion, compared with about 44 billion for the current year.

But new military appropriation requests, officials say, will total only about 51 1/2 billion dollars—compared with about 65 billion for the current year, ending June 30.

Backlog of Spending
The reported new program would be the first in four years in which actual spending tops new appropriation requests. Over the past three years, congress approved 70 billion more in spending authority than the government actually put out in cash.

Most of this surplus was allocated for defense goods, to be delivered in later years. Now, the nation is beginning to tap this huge backlog. And reduced appropriation requests mean that a leveling off or reduction of spending is in sight two or three years hence.

Mike Meechikoff, Like Carlsen, Stuck With 'Ship'

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen of the Flying Enterprise has a counterpart, in a small way, in Mike Meechikoff.

Meechikoff stayed by his "ship" in distress and, with more luck than Carlsen, eventually brought it to safety.

Meechikoff's "ship" is a truck. He drove it down to the Los Angeles river early yesterday. Something went wrong and the truck wound up in the concrete channel bed. Water rose to the fenders and killed the engine. By morning the truck had "sailed" five blocks downstream.

Meechikoff refused all offers to pull the truck ashore. When dawn came he put in a fresh battery and drove up a concrete ramp to safety.

CARLSEN IN LONDON
LONDON—(AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen of the Flying Enterprise was cheered at London's Paddington station early today when he arrived by train from Falmouth.

A crowd of more than 100 persons gathered as the word spread that the little man in the gold-braided uniform was the 37-year-old skipper who wouldn't give up his ship.

A friend who travelled with Carlsen told reporters:

"He will probably stay with a friend during the morning before going on to the Danish club where he is to be decorated by the Danish ambassador later today."

"It is not yet definite when he will be flying home to America."

Pilot, Blinded By Shell, Brings In Plane Safely

U.S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, (AP)—A B-26 bomber pilot temporarily blinded by an exploding anti-aircraft shell was "talked in" to a safe landing by his navigator, the Fifth air force said today.

Lt. John Brubbs, Brooksville, Fla., was making a routine strafing run on a Communist warehouse when the shell hit the plane's canopy.

The pilot was stunned and blinded as blood streamed down his face.

"I've been hit," he yelled into the plane's intercommunication system. "I can't see. It's all yours."

Lt. Vincent Alessi of Roxbury, Mass., couldn't take over the controls because in a B-26 no one but the pilot can reach them. So he began giving Brubbs quiet instructions for heading the plane back toward the base.

For more than an hour the pilot responded to the words of Alessi coming over the intercom.

"Down a little . . . a little to the left . . . slower . . ." And finally "We're on the ground Johnny, put on the brakes."

Grubbs inadvertently set the emergency brake and the bomber blew two tires as it jolted to a sudden stop.

"I have to taxi this plane down to the ramp," Grubbs muttered.

But Alessi replied quietly: "Don't bother, Johnny."

Air force doctors said Grubbs' eyes were not damaged. He was blinded by blood streaming from a head wound.

The third member of the bomber's crew, Sgt. Earl Brooks of Birmingham, Ala., the gunner, said:

"I had no doubt we could make it after we reached our altitude."

OPPOSES LOANS TO PAPERS
FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—German Evangelical Pastor Martin Niemöller wants a boycott of West German newspapers which have accepted loans from the United States.

The loans, from a $3,570,000 fund, were made to many newspapers recently to help them achieve financial and editorial independence, said American occupation officials.

Niemöller told the woman's peace congress at St. Paul's church here yesterday that acceptance of such loans made the newspapers foreign publications printed in Germany. He added that his opposition to this type of Western aid did not mean that he believed the loans were being used to bribe the editors.

Lenses were discovered in the 13th century and the microscope was introduced toward the close of the 17th century.

Capt. Carlsen Gets Medal From Native Denmark

LONDON, (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen, hero of the Flying Enterprise saga, received a decoration today from the king of his native Denmark. Crowds of shoppers and sightseers outside cheered so loudly the presentation speech could barely be heard.

The stocky little Danish-born hero from Woodbridge, N.J., spoke only one sentence when he received the Order of Dannebrog for sticking to his sinking ship until she went down last Thursday in the stormy Atlantic.

"I don't know how to express my feelings, but please accept from me just a simple seaman's 'thank you,'" Carlsen murmured after Count Eduard Reventlow, Danish ambassador to London, pinned the gold cross of the order, one of Denmark's highest honors, on the skipper's lapel.

Carlsen, who lost all his clothing when his ship went down, was dressed in a brand new Merchant Marine uniform with four gold captain's stripes glittering on the cuffs. He looked spry and alert after a weekend rest, showing no sign of the rigors of his two weeks of battle with the raging sea.

Boy Crushed to Death by Moving Theater Platform

NEW YORK, (AP)—Some 800 theater patrons, intent on watching a movie, were unaware yesterday that almost before their eyes life was being crushed out of a 14-year-old boy by a moving orchestra platform.

The youth, Anthony Blaskovich, Jr., was killed as he curiously peered from his front row seat beneath the stage of the Academy of Music theater on 14th street. The descending orchestra platform caught him against the wall of the pit, crushing his head.

Police said apparently few of the patrons realized what had happened and the film was not interrupted.

Witnesses said the boy became curious when he heard a rumbling from the moving platform.

An assistant manager of the theater said the platform was being lowered after some children had tampered earlier with the stage controls, causing the platform to rise above part of the screen.

Track Red-Hot Sweaters to New York Firm

NEW YORK —(AP)— City officials, on the trail of inflammable sweaters, planned to visit today a New York plant which two manufacturers say supplied material for some of the garments.

A small-scale national scare has been stirred up by the sweaters, which burn to ashes in less than a minute if ignited. Police in various areas reported that many of the sweaters have been turned over to them. One reportedly burned when the wearer lit a cigaret, another when the wearer stood too near a gas stove.

New York City Fire Marshal Martin Scott said last night he would visit the plant of the Empire State Mills here today.

"Brush Rayon"

Two sweater manufacturers in New York and Cleveland yesterday told officials that the Empire State Mills had supplied them with material for their products. Scott called the material "brush rayon."

Efforts to reach Empire State Mills officials last night were unsuccessful.

Reports of the combustible sweater started about a month ago when a young man in Los Angeles lit a cigaret and his new sweater went "poof."

Since then, similar incidents have been reported until the burning sweater reached national proportions. Some sweater-wearers "tested" garments they had been wearing for months and saw them burst into flames in four seconds. The sweaters were ashes in 50 seconds.

Explanations of Prices and Discounts (Reading Time 40 Seconds)

To determine sale discounts, our entire inventory is roughly divided into these three general classifications:

1. BRAND NEW AND STAPLE MERCHANDISE —Minimum sale discount here is 10%. But shoe prices dropped substantially last fall, so you'll actually buy this merchandise at 18 to 27% below last September prices.
2. ODDS AND ENDS, BROKEN SIZE RUNS, ETC.—We claim discounts to 50% on this classification. Actually, reductions run as high as 70 and 80% on some items. Keep in mind that this merchandise is still highly desirable; it's simply the normal accumulation of odds and ends from a season of heavy selling. All are nationally known, branded footwear.

3. THE BALANCE OF OUR STOCK falls somewhere between Classifications 1 and 2 and is priced accordingly. Discounts here will average 33 to 42% below last September prices.

How do we make a profit? We don't in January. We don't expect to. But we do a terrific job of cleaning house, make a lot of friends, and do a tremendous business in a month that is ordinarily slow.

International Press Institute Monitors Presentation of News

World peace based on world understanding is a happy state of affairs long sought but never achieved. Such understanding must, of course, derive from knowledge.

Knowledge, in turn, must come from a free and honest flow of information between the countries of the world and within the individual countries.

That's been the hitch. Too often barriers of ignorance, prejudice and fear have blocked this flow.

It is heartening, therefore to note the progress of an organization set up a year ago to smooth the way for better mutual understanding among the peoples of the world.

The organization is the International Press Institute. The chairman of its executive board is Lester Markel, Sunday editor of the New York Times.

IPI's announced aim is to determine whether individual countries are getting an accurate picture of other countries through their newspapers, and if they are not to try to remedy the situation. To date, national committees composed of leading newspaper editors have been formed in 24 countries.

A main part of their job will be to check and report on threats to press freedom within their individual countries.

The flow of news between countries, with any criticisms as to distortion or general quality, will come under the eyes of officials of the various world press associations.

Fortunately for its future, IPI got off to a sound financial start with a $270,000 grant from the Ford and Rockefeller foundations for expenses the first three years. All it has to do now is turn in a record of sustained accomplishment.

The U. S. State Department, with its world-wide information service to newspapers of other countries, is telling America's story throughout the world, but as a government agency with a definite ax to grind, it has its limitations.

By policing and strengthening themselves, the world's established press and news services can offer their readers a quality product that can't be matched.

IPI can go a long way toward establishing this quality.

Don't Feel Sorry for Him, He's Happy

You've seen him. A dark figure outlined on a rise of ground against the gray of a winter sky. Stolidly he trudges, head down, shoulders bent against the winter wind.

He carries a weight that he does not feel. His troubles are more than a man should have, but he worries not.

In the morning his boss will call him on the carpet and tell him he is a loafer and a sluggard and threaten to fire him.

His wife already is in a cold rage because he's out walking around in the middle of winter, about to catch his death. His friends think he's crazy.

He should be worrying about these things, but he isn't. Right now he doesn't care. Winter winds? He doesn't even feel them.

The fishy stare from the boss in the morning? Poof. Friends think he's crazy. Let 'em.

And the weight on his back that makes the shoulders sag? That's not a weight, friend. That's a golf bag.

Strictly speaking, our dark wintry figure, for the time being at least, is hardly a human being. He's a winter golfer.

If his emotions could be analyzed at the moment it would be found that he is in love—in love with a wild, unreasoning ardor that would come as quite a shock to his wife.

He's in love with a game and he doesn't care who knows it or what anyone does to try to break up his golden affair.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE
JOHNSON
NEA Staff
Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA) — It's my flendish pleasure, since I don't subscribe to the current rubarb that Hollywood stars are just like your next-door neighbors and folksy as all get-out, to mention that film royalty is eating from gold and silver plates.

And I defy Dagmar, Sid Caesar, Imogene Coca, Jackie Gleason, Sara Churchill, Howdy Doody or any other upstart TV stars to make that statement.

Yep, in spite of tax liens and salary cuts, movie biggies are still munching off fancy platters. A famous silversmith named Allan Adler, who's been designing celluloid kings and queens at his Sunset Strip studio since 1939, told me about this.

Adler knows every piece of expensive metal in the stars' cupboards and his files are stuffed with the contemporary silver flatware designs he's dreamed up for Thespians such as Gregory Peck, Green Garson, Diana Lynn, Maureen O'Sullivan, Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin, Katharine Hepburn and Joan Crawford.

Once he hammered out a $50,000 order of solid gold dinner plates, water goblets and a tea service for a male star.

"When he sets his table—wow!" said Adler, a blue-eyed youngish man. "I can't reveal his name, though. He's afraid of being burglarized. Once some robbers broke into his house, but they didn't take the gold stuff. They figured it was brass."

Except for monograms on their knives, forks, spoons and plates (Greer Garson's hubby, Buddy Fogleson, has his cattle brand on the handles of his steak-knives) stars play it pretty straight in their table-setting.

FANCY RUNS RIOT ON GIFTS

It's when they get around to giving silver and gold presents that the wacky note is sounded, Adler said.

He decided that he'd master the poker-faced technique of faking star customers, when a producer ordered a gold-plated telephone encrusted with jewels for a beauty who was still waiting for her final decree.

"And I haven't cracked a smile since," said Adler.

He also mentioned "gold-plated" potpies for babies, a silver grater for a screenwriter who loved potatoes, and silver keys to her apartment for a certain blonde around town.

Edgar Bergen, the artisan recalled, had him make up a silver key chain and cuff links for Charley McCarthy. Gary Cooper once ordered a silver cigarette box that would hold exactly 20 cigarettes. Greer Garson presents friends' babies with silver porringers and Alan Ladd, who's a horse fancier, persuaded Adler to turn out a silver dresser set with handles of carved horse heads.

Gracie Allen came to him one day with an idea for silver troughs for corn-on-the-cob. Adler worked out some corn-shaped vessels that make it possible for Gracie and her guests to swish their corn around in melted butter instead of struggling with blobs of the stuff on knives.

"The other day," he related, "Gracie called us and she was frantic. Her maid and butler had just walked out on her and she was giving a dinner party that night. She wanted to know if we'd all come over and polish her silver. We did, too."

There's a big demand for silver pieces on which the signatures of stars are engraved and it's all that Adler can do to keep up with the orders.

He's forever copying their handwriting scrawls on cuff links, buttons, buckles and cigar cases.

AMATEUR SILVERSMITHS

Katharine Hepburn, Margaret Sullivan and Jimmy Gleason like to drop into his workrooms and hammer out silver on an anvil that's exactly like the one Paul Revere used, and Adler commented that "Gleason's very skilled, Miss Sullivan's fairly good at it and Miss Hepburn just sort of plays around."

He supplies studios with special props in silver and gold when a script calls for it. An Adler-executed gold tankard was crushed by Vic Mature for a scene in "Samson and Delilah."

It was made of lead so Vic could crush it easily and look strong.

He still hasn't recovered, though from a job he did for Orson Welles. Orson brought him a gold bracelet that Rita Hayworth had given him and asked that it be soldered to his arm.

"He said," remembered Adler, "that he wanted to wear the bracelet close to his skin for the rest of his life. We wrapped his arm in asbestos to keep from burning him and soldered the bracelet so that he could not remove it."

This happened before their divorce and Adler doubts that Orson is still wearing the bracelet.

THE DOCTOR SAYS: X-Ray, Radium Are Power In Fight Against Cancer

Mrs. F. asks for an article on the subject of treating cancer with the X-ray method followed by radium treatments, and says, "Is this method considered as effective as an operation?"

In order to answer this question it is necessary to start with a brief discussion of cancer as a disease. Cancer is a condition in which certain cells of the body start to grow wild.

The body is made up of many different kinds of cells which ordinarily, in the normal person, grow normally and maintain a balanced relationship with the other cells.

Sometimes, for reasons which our research workers are still seeking, some of these cells start to divide and divide and multiply, forming what is known as a cancerous tumor.

Cells of these tumors may be of several different kinds, and may appear in several parts of the body and grow at different rates of speed.

CHECK GROWTHS AT ONCE

At present, the problem of treating cancer is to identify these cancerous growths as soon as possible after they have started. When this can be done soon after the cancer tumor has developed, removal of the tumor and all of the abnormal cells is generally the treatment of choice.

X-rays and radium are used sometimes after an operation in order to try to destroy any cancerous cells which may have been missed.

They are sometimes used to destroy cancerous cells in regions which cannot be satisfactorily approached in order to remove the bad cells by surgery.

X-rays and radium are powerful agents in the battle against cancer, but they have to be used with care so that in so far as possible they will destroy only the cancer cells and as few of the normal cells as possible.

When to Take Discard Pile

By OSWALD JACOBY

"The player at your right discards a card that you can meld," states a San Francisco correspondent. "Under what circumstances is it wise for you to draw from the stock pile instead of taking the discard pile?"

It is very often the right play when the discard pile contains only four or six cards. It is usually the right play when the discard pile contains only two cards.

Notice the even numbers. If you have picked up the discard pile last, it will contain four cards when it comes around to you again. If your partner has picked up the discard pile last, it will contain two cards when it comes to you for the first time, and six cards when it comes to you the next time.

In general, you refuse to take the discard pile only when your side is in such control of the situation that you expect to get it later on anyhow. This means that you or your partner has taken the pile last.

It is quite different if the opponents have picked up the pile last. Then you are eager to get even a small number of cards so as to meld and either compete for the pile or meld out quickly. This means that you would pick up a discard pile of three, five, or seven cards. You might even pick up a discard pile of only one card.

These principles apply only when at least one side has melded. At the very beginning of a hand, before either side has melded, you are seldom interested in a discard pile of only one or two cards. But you are interested as soon as that pile contains four or more cards. After all, a first pile of four cards may allow you to make the initial meld and still retain ten or eleven cards in your hand.

It almost never is wise to pass up a discard pile of eight or more cards. A possible exception occurs when both opponents are down to only three or four cards and are

Opera Star Takes Ambulance for a Ride to Boston

BOSTON, (AP) — Opera Singer David Lloyd was taken from Montreal to Boston in an ambulance early yesterday—but there was nothing medically wrong with him.

His performance in an opera in Montreal ended about midnight Saturday night and he had to be in Boston for a dress rehearsal yesterday morning.

Lloyd hired the ambulance for the overnight trip—at a cost of $195—when he learned there was neither train nor plane service to get him to Boston in time.

Boris Goldovsky, director of the New England opera theatre, said the matinee performance of "Albert Herring" would have been cancelled had Lloyd been unable to appear.

What's Right?

You ask a newly made acquaintance from a city where you know an influential family if she knows them and she says she does not.

WRONG: Say: "You must have heard of them. They are a very old and very influential family."

RIGHT: Drop the subject before you get around to telling how important and prominent your friends are.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

A Visit to Chief of Tactical Air Force in Europe Recalls Some West Point Memories for Pegler

(Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

PARIS—The chief of the tactical air forces of the allied powers in Europe is a tall, reedy young man of 45, with a thick strand of sandy-to-reddish hair and not a gray one showing and three stars on the shoulders of his dressy blue suit. He was Cadet Larry Norstad when our paths first crossed at West Point in the late 'twenties.

That was in the time of Christian Cagle, an unfortunate boy from Louisiana who had absolutely no belly for anything they had offer up the river except the football. Finally, when little Red had given his all, he was politely let out just before June week, the graduation time, because he had quietly married the one and only on his Christmas leave in Louisiana. He had broken an old rule which says a cadet shall have no horse, dog, moustache, nor wife. West Point had good football teams in those days and a team of publicity officers and a team of sport writers to travel with the club. Sometimes the corps of cadets went along in a shocking departure from the old monastic tradition which, in Pershing's time on the plain, forbade even smoking. After the first war, some cadet on home leave somewhere off the seaboard, had been mistaken for a letter-carrier and the campaign began to advertise and endear the military academy and the corps of cadets to the American people. In another version, the cadet was mistaken for a Confederate soldier.

I realize that a man of 45 is a citizen with full responsibility. He can carry matches, buy beer at the bar and hang for murder. In common with many others, I have a mental picture of elderly men which goes with the rank of lieutenant-general. Men such as Robert Lee Bullard and Hunter Liggett. I am not the only one who has made remarks about the youngishness of General Norstad, but this is the last reference that you will hear in my quavering senile treble.

His headquarters is or are in Fontainebleau where, on the day I called, his 13-year-old daughter was riding in the royal wood in a hunt for boar, hare or squirrel. General Norstad thought they would settle for whatever they got.

We looked at maps, some of them very secret from all except, probably, the Russian staff. France is crawling with Communists and anything they can't report to Moscow their spies in our state department probably will. Moreover, it can be no secret from the Russians that we haven't got much among us all combined and for particulars they may, with profit, read the pages of Life where by generous permission of General Curtis LeMay, the chief of our strategic bombing command, Miss Margaret Bourke-White, a lady with a persuasive way with the air force, recently was able to show us intimate details of the latest high-speed bomber then in use. Miss Bourke-White's record of close and sympathetic traffic with fellow travelers and outright Communists was easily available, but General LeMay let her take 1,500 shots of his and other American war planes. Life got the negatives and Senator Cain, of the state of Washington, who tried to get some action from the defense department got only evasive action after all.

We now have a new and bigger version of the plane that Miss Bourke-White photographed for Life. The Russian's wouldn't let us make a telescopic shot of a screw-driver and General Norstad, without reference to General LeMay's generous policy, said he saw no good reason to let anyone make any pictures of any of our stuff. The difference between Norstad's tactical command and LeMay's strategic command is that LeMay's work is inseparable from the great politics of a war. Norstad's is action in support of battles and campaigns.

It was Saturday afternoon and, after lunch the general remarked that he was a musical ignoramus but was very fond of the drapery which Irving Berlin had hung around the poem on the base of the Statue of Liberty. That is the one about our welcome to the wretched refuse of the teeming shores of Europe. I said I liked Berlin's Easter Parade, Ragtime Band and the duets from Call Me Madame, but had flared my nostrils and caught the reek of propaganda when Miss Liberty, the show in which this song was plugged, opened in New York. I said some of that wretched refuse seemed to think we natives had no rights at all and told him about the private gestapo run by the Anti-Nazi league, in New York.

He played a record of the song anyway and I still think it was no good. I would like to remark that with the exceptions of Eisenhower and MacArthur our generals overdo an affectation of ignorance on politics. They adopt this attitude to keep out of trouble with the White House, Congress and societies for and against this and that. But it would be well if we could devise some examination to be taken once a year to determine whether they have enough political knowledge. As it is, they are afraid to make intelligent recommendations on important problems which have become mortal taboos.

I told General Norstad that along about June week that year I met Red Cagle in mufti at Gus Wilson's goofy crest, the prize-fighters' camp down the line from West Point, and ran him up in my car for a visit. We had a couple of beers in a saloon a few doors south of the gate and the bartender and some of the customers obviously knew Red socially. Red said they were old friends. He said he even used to get his mufti out of the trunk-room, climb the hill back behind, take an outing, return, change back into uniform and get back in his quarters in time to stand reveille. General Norstad said he had heard of such things in his time though he had no positive knowledge. Very risky but possible. It meant automatic expulsion if a man was caught.

We went back to Cagle's old quarters that day where Red fell in with Buster Perry, a big tackle on the good teams which had earned so much renown for West Point and so much money for the permanent athletic plant built by Major Phil Fleming, the graduate manager. Phil made major-general in the big war, but Roosevelt had mired him in politics in Washington, much of the time under Harold Ickes, a humiliating position for a self-respecting man. So Phil never made chief of engineers, which was his ambition. Clovis Byers, a lieutenant instructor, then, made major-general in Korea but he had been with MacArthur all through the Pacific and Japan and that night fix his wagon. Several other cadets of Norstad's time were generals. Some were killed.

General Norstad said old General William R. Smith, the superintendent then, once boasted to a section in class that he had been the best second lieutenant, best captain and best major general in the army and had proved it. General Smith could take over a class in any subject and carry on as though he had never closed the book. And General Smith was the one who during prohibition let it be known that he had no sense of smell. At a garden party one June week, when Cappy Wells came along in the reception line with a ring of powdered sugar over his nose and cheeks from a julep or two at his quarters, General Smith said: "Good afternoon, Captain Wells. Been in the flour-barrel?"

A football officer, now a retired general, put a terrible question one afternoon as our football train rolled toward Champaign where Red Grange and Britton ruined our brave lads. We were discussing the West Point code of honor and this officer said, eyeing the glass in his hand: "Do you realize that we officers swear an oath every year to support the Constitution, including the Eighteenth amendment?"

If there was any officer in the football staff who didn't violate the Constitution, his oath and the West Point code of honor on and off the post in those days he kept himself inconspicuous. This reminiscence may console or anger all over again those cadets who were discharged last fall for violating the code.

There I go again, bringing problems—

Success, according to a professor, comes to those who "move."

Miss Betty Lou Newman Bride of Richard L. Dusing

When Miss Betty Lou Newman, only daughter of the Carl H. Newmans, Franklin Grove road, became the bride of Richard L. Dusing of the U. S. navy Sunday afternoon, she wore a gown fashioned of white satin. Richard's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dusing, 812 Third st.

Large baskets of white snapdragons and palms decorated the altar of the First Methodist church, Dixon, for the 2 p. m. double ring ceremony. Rev. Bliss Cartwright of the Presbyterian church officiated.

The pair of brass seven-branched candelabra used during the service had been a gift to the Presbyterian church from the Newmans in memory of their son, Bill, who was killed in World War II.

Crawford Thomas as nuptial organist played a prelude of music before the ceremony and also accompanied Gene Harvey, soloist, "I Love You Truly" and "Because" were sung by Mr. Harvey who also sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar. Mr. Thomas is in charge of the department of which the bride is employed at the Public Service company.

Wears Grandmothers' Ring

Given in marriage by her father, the beautiful bride wore a gown styled with a mandarin collar and a V shaped applique of princess lace. The gown had a fitted bodice, long sleeves and full skirt. The bride's fingertip veil of imported English illusion, fell from a satin bonnet trimmed in pearls. For her something old, the bride wore her late Grandmother Collins' wedding ring.

A white Bible, a gift to the bride's maid of honor, when she was capped in nurses' training, was Betty's something borrowed. Her something new was her gown and her something blue, a garter. White roses mixed with ivy rested on the prayer book.

Miss Jacqueline Praetz of Dixon, as maid of honor, wore a gown of Alpine rose velvet. Over the strapless, full skirted gown, "Jackie" wore a matching fitted jacket styled with long sleeves and a mandarin collar. Her Juliette cap, graced with seed pearls, also matched her gown. For her arm bouquet she carried American Beauty roses.

Winterberry velvet fashioned the gowns of Misses Margaret Curran and Peggy Rhodes, both of Dixon, the bridesmaids. Their gowns matched the one worn by the maid of honor and they too wore matching Juliette caps. They carried arm bouquets of Bountiful roses.

Men in Formal Attire

Donald Sproul, student at Western Illinois State Teacher's college, Macomb and of Dixon, attended the bridegroom as best man. Raymond Brennan of Dodgeville, Wis., a navy friend of "Dick" was groomsmen and Sterling Stackhouse Jr., of Dixon and Northwestern university was second groomsmen and an usher. Floyd Wohrley of Dixon and Western Illinois State Teacher's college; Phil Kernan, Dixon, and Bill James of Dixon and Loras college, Dubuque, Ia., ushered. All of the men in the wedding party wore cut-a-ways.

Joy Salzmann of Sheffield, cousin of the bridegroom, as flower girl wore an Alpine rose velvet floor length gown. Hoop skirt, puff sleeves and sweetheart neckline, were styled of the gown. Nylon lace trimmed the sleeves and neckline. Joy wore a band of Alpine rose velvet graced with seed pearls in her hair and carried a basket of pink Bountiful rose petals.

Dressed like the other men in the wedding party, Wayne Salzmann of Mineral, Ill., another cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Mothers Wear Orchids

Rhinestone buttons trimmed the jacket of the two piece mauve velvet dress worn by the bride's mother. Her hat of silver brocade was edged with the same velvet, and she wore a dark purple orchid at her shoulder. Mrs. Dusing, the bridegroom's mother, wore an orchid of lighter lavender at the shoulder of her raspberry crepe dress. Her hat was of winter white.

Home Reception

Baskets of white mums banked each side of the fireplace at the newly built residence of the bride's parents for the reception held immediately following the ceremony. Huckleberry decorated the center of the refreshment table and on a twin table rested the four-tiered all white wedding cake. The huckleberry was repeated on the cake's base. Music was presented during the reception by Virgil A. Hurlbutt of Galva, Ill., at the organ.

Mrs. William H. Green of Dixon, aunt of the bride, served the cake; Miss Donna Streibich had charge of the guest book; Misses Maryanne Cahill and Joan Hill, poured; Misses Pat Wadsworth and Beverly Dusing, sister of the bridegroom, were in charge of the gifts and Mrs. James Culley and Miss Connie Saari assisted at the refreshment table. All of the reception aides wore gardenias with the exception of Miss Dusing who wore a rose corsage.

When the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Miami, Fla., the bride was charming in a dusty

St. James Ladies Aid Appoints New 1952 Committees

Korea long. I hope the war ends soon.

"We get a Christmas party so don't worry about us. If you are allowed to send me a package I would like to have some candy.

"I sure miss everyone at home. I have begun to get some fat on now. It must be from the rice. We get it twice a day.

"I haven't got any mail from you yet. I am allowed to write once a month. You can write me all you want.

"I want you to wish everyone a Merry Christmas.

"Love, Liburn McCordle.

Strout and Dixon, Bales and Gunner are attorneys for Kreiser. The envelope, a light, glueless one marked "Free-P.O.W. mail," carried the return address: "Pfc. Liburn McCordle, RA 16323242; POW camp, North Korea 1103; o/c Chinese People's Committee for World Peace, Jeking, China."

Has Two Sisters
McCordle's letter was also good news to the two other members of the family. He has two sisters, Beverly, 15, and Mrs. Paul (Betty) Keller, Sterling.

The McCordle family, since the time Corky landed in Korea, Aug. 1, 1951, has kept a running account of the war by maps and news stories clipped from newspapers. Among the collection is the story of how the McCordle's division, the Second Infantry, was trapped in the Hoengsong area and how many were captured. The action took place between Feb. 12 and 18, the same time at which McCordle was reported missing.

Told by Telegraph
He was a member of the 15th Field artillery, "A" Battery, at the time of his capture.

The family was told of McCordle's listing as a POW, Dec. 19, by The Evening Telegraph when the early newspaper lists were received. Dec. 20, however, the official government telegram arrived.

Before entering service on Nov. 7, 1949, McCordle was employed at the Freeman shoe factory and Brady Beverage Co. He took his basic training at Ft. Riley, Kas., and was stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., before going to Korea.

Winnie May Surprise Congress And Himself in Thursday's Talk

BY ED CREAGH
(For Hal Boyle)

WASHINGTON, (AP) — "One thing you must remember about Mr. Churchill," said the visiting Englishman, "is that he was thrown from a donkey at the age of four—and landed on his head."

Then he grinned at our startled expressions and went on to explain himself:

"I'm not suggesting there is anything wrong with the old boy's head now. Far from it. But you can always count on him to do the unexpected, just as he was doing when he was four."

"So I'd go easy, if I were you chaps, on forecasting what he's likely to tell your congress when he addresses it next Thursday. He may surprise you. He may surprise even himself."

One of the reporters around the table, an American, nodded.

"Like before D-day in the late war," he said. "Churchill, you know, was dead set against an invasion of the south of France. Fought it at the Quebec conference and kept right on fighting it. Gives His V-Sign."

"Well, we did push into southern France, and who should turn up on the deck of a destroyer offshore, giving his V-sign, cheering the boys on—but good old Winston."

We mulled that one for a while. Then the Englishman said:

"He's one of the few great men this century has seen. No doubt about that. But he can act like a spoiled child on occasion."

"At one of the Big Three conferences during the war—Yalta, it must have been, and he's told this story himself—Churchill stormed out of a party because Stalin and Molotov were pulling his leg over the question of what to do with Germany."

Russians Sooth Him
"The Russians went after him, clapped him on the back and said what amounted to, 'Rats, old boy, come back and have a nip. We were only playing.' They had the devil of a time convincing him."

"Great kidders, those Russians," said one of the Americans, sourly.

"Churchill, though," another said, "has a priceless sense of humor himself. It's a dry, deliberately nonsensical kind of humor—more American than British. Yet he adds his own John Bull touch to it."

"Back in 1943 he visited Niagara Falls and a young reporter asked how he liked it. Churchill said he's seen the falls long before the reporter was born—back around 1900, as I remember."

"Well," the kid said, "have they changed much?"

"Churchill looked as if he were deliberating. Then he said, with that chuckle of his:

"The principle seems the same. The water still keeps falling over."

"Goes on and on!" The visiting Englishman laughed.

"Like Winston himself," he said. "Keeps going on and on, though not with water."

"In '42, at the end of his conferences in Moscow, Stalin proposed that they adjourn to his quarters in the Kremlin for a touch of something. It was mid-evening, but Churchill toolled right along in spite of the fact that he had to be up at dawn for the flight back to London."

"I heard it from a chap who was in Moscow at the time—at 3 a.m. they were still at it. Churchill never did get to bed. He took off an hour later. Stalin probably slept all the next day."

"Clever chaps, those Russians. But they never put our Winston under the table."

Explosion of Propane Gas Tank Kills Widow, Injures 2 Sunday

CROSSVILLE, Ill. — (AP) — Two gas blasts hurled pieces of a large metal tank into homes over a two-block area last night and killed an elderly widow. Two other persons were injured.

The twin explosions of propane gas came as most families in this small southern Illinois town were preparing for a quiet Sunday night supper.

Mrs. Mae Slankard, about 55, died, either directly from the blast or in a fire which demolished her house. Seven other frame houses were damaged badly.

Two Explosions

Police Chief R. G. Randall said the first blast ripped apart a 500-gallon tank of the gas. A second explosion, less than a minute later, occurred in the Slankard house.

Randall said he didn't know what touched off the blasts.

A large section of the tank ripped through Randall's kitchen.

"We didn't have time to think what it could be," Mrs. Randall said. She was in the dining room with her three children when she heard the tank smash through the kitchen.

She ran outside where she found Mrs. Charlotte Cox, telephone operator. Both women ran to the nearby telephone office and spread the alarm.

Burned Critically

Mrs. Allen Cozart, about 65, was burned critically. Her husband was injured slightly.

Chelsea Fobar, who lived just west of Mrs. Slankard, said he and his family were at supper in the kitchen.

"The first blast sounded like a shotgun shell in back of the kitchen stove," Fobar said. "Then a flash fire swept through every room of our place. It burned off the window shades, blew out the glass and knocked plaster off the walls."

"How we escaped I don't know. It was too quick."

Across the street Gerald Powden was lying on a davenport when he heard the first explosion.

"Couldn't Move"

"I ran to the front door and it looked like the whole street was on fire," he said. "I couldn't move for a few minutes, then I got out a hose and poured water on the wall."

The tank belonged to the Rev. C. C. Campbell, Baptist minister. He said he and his family were getting ready for church.

"The first explosion knocked my son, Charles, against me and almost tipped me over."

They ran outside, uninjured.

The large section of the tank that went through the Randall kitchen flew over two vacant lots, another house, the telephone exchange, and slammed against the second story of the Homer Marshall house.

Auto Demolished

Two automobiles were demolished by flames after the ball of fire enveloped them. Also destroyed was a garage.

Firemen from Grayville and Carmit helped Crossville volunteers put out the flames. Except for the Slankard house, fire damage was light. No estimate on damage from the blast was available.

Crossville, with 866 population, is about 40 miles west of Evansville, Ind.

Elgin Mental Patient Found Beaten to Death

ELGIN — (AP) — A woman patient at the Elgin State hospital was found dead in a cottage washroom yesterday and L. Victor Peterson, Kane county coroner, said she had been beaten to death.

The woman was Mrs. Leona Clark, 35. Her address was 837 N. Winchester av., Chicago, when she was committed to the hospital in February, 1942.

Peterson said Mrs. Clark's body was found on the bathroom floor in Hawley cottage where "highly disturbed" patients are quartered. She had been hit on the head and there were indications she may have been choked, the coroner said.

Peterson said the victim's husband, George Clark, now resides in Milwaukee where he is a restaurant worker.

GOP Senators Will Probe Ag Spending

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Republican senators said today they will push for full-dress public hearings on three different investigations of the multi-billion dollar activities of the agriculture department.

"Unless we get a thorough public airing on all suspicions that now exist, it may discredit the farm program," Senator Thye (R-Minn.) told a reporter.

Senator Kern (R-Mo) in another interview said he will "urge full public hearings as soon as possible."

Chairman Ellender (D-La) said the 13-member agriculture committee will meet Wednesday behind closed doors to consider the various requests for investigations and hearings.

Senator Aiken (R-Vt), senior GOP committee member, said the committee received a confidential report this weekend from the comptroller general on "shortages conservatively estimated at four million dollars" in the farm price support program.

"The report calls them 'conversions' of government commodities," Aiken said. "In a bank it would be called embezzlement but in my language it is stealing."

On Dec. 28 the agriculture department disclosed some losses had resulted from its 10 billion dollar program of supporting farm crops by government loans. It said about five million dollars was in dispute and called this relatively small, considering the vast number of loans and individuals involved.

Aiken said grains and other commodities owned by the government were placed in elevators and storage centers and then sold by contractors who kept the funds.

Gale Hinders Search for 45 at Sea

SEATTLE, (AP) — Search planes awaited clearing weather today to resume scanning the storm-tossed North Pacific for the freighter Pennsylvania and her 45-man crew.

Hope for the children, who took to lifeboats during a howling storm last Wednesday, was fading, but the coast guard ordered a thorough search of an area southeastward of the last position reported by the stricken freighter.

A gale force storm with winds up to 75 miles an hour forced the coast guard to cancel all search flights Sunday.

Four surface vessels also were in the area but the coast guard reported them "hull down in very high seas" and unable, until the weather moderates, to participate. The ships were battling 35-foot waves, the coast guard said. The Pennsylvania radioed last Wednesday the crew was taking to lifeboats after the freighter had cracked its seams in heavy seas. An oil slick and floating debris were found Friday but there was no trace of the lifeboats.

AUTO STOCKS HIT LOW

Mascot of War II Division Dies in Korea

HOUSTON — (AP) — A homeless French war dog who died in Korea trying to repay the kindness shown him in the United States will be buried in his adopted country.

Cpl. Alexander Stewart, 22, was killed in action Dec. 28.

But the casualty list doesn't tell how the youth asked—and got—the help of a congressman in transferring from the safety of Japan to the Korean battlefield. It doesn't tell how he came to America twice as a stowaway before Congress passed a special law to let him stay here legally.

To Be Brought Home

Mrs. A. Axelrod of Houston, his foster mother, said last night she would bring the body home for burial. "I know that is what he would have wanted me to do," she said.

At 22 the corporal was an old hand at war and fighting. When he was 12 he ran away from an orphanage in Alsace, joined the underground and finally escaped to North Africa. He was adopted by the 133rd regiment of the 34th Infantry division and fought with them for five years—North Africa, Sicily, Anzio.

Came to America

When the war was over Alex stowed away on a troop ship and came to America. Members of the 133rd gave him $200 and he struck out on his own. When he tried to enlist in the U.S. army he discovered he was an alien. Back to France he went. There was no record of his citizenship there. Again he stowed away on an American ship and arrived in Galveston, Tex., July 4, 1947.

Rep. Albert Thomas (D-Tex) introduced a special law in Congress to let Alex stay here as an immigrant. The measure passed in August of 1950. A few days later Alex enlisted in the U.S. army, and was sent to Japan.

Wanted Action

"Alex became very tired of Japan and wrote that he wanted to get into action," Mrs. Axelrod said. "About a month later I got a letter from Rep. Thomas saying that Alex had written asking for help to get in the fighting. Rep. Thomas said 'I hope I haven't done the wrong thing by seeing that he gets his wish.'"

The request got a chilly reception. The Reds charged that Allied planes flew over Mukden, Wushien and other Chinese communities but did not say any were attacked.

A UN spokesman at Panmunjom said "we assume the charge is similar to a lot of other allegations they have made and completely irrelevant to the meeting."

A fifth air force spokesman at Seoul denied that any Allied planes flew over Northeast China Sunday. The outburst of Communist temper came after Rear Adm. R. E. Libby explained that the Allied voluntary prisoner repatriation plan would be advantageous to the Reds as well as the UN.

Both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 11 a.m. Tuesday (8 p.m. CST Monday).

Reds Shout 'Lie' During Peace Talks

MUNSAN, Korea — (AP) — Communist negotiators shouted "lie" in a heated debate over prisoner exchange today and charged that Allied planes flew over several cities in Northwest China Sunday.

Allied negotiators on the truce supervision subcommittee switched tactics Monday after failing for three straight days to get an oral statement of the Communist stand on airfield reconstruction. Instead the UN asked the Reds to agree to restrictions.

The request got a chilly reception.

Police Hunt 'Dangerous' Holdup Man

ST. LOUIS, (AP) — A pajama-clad prisoner described as dangerous by authorities made a daring escape from city hospital last night by leaping 20 feet from a window after leather straps binding him to a bed had been cut.

Jerry S. Reid, 26, under indictment in three holdups, was described by Edward L. Dowd, first assistant circuit attorney, as "one of the most vicious stickup men to hit St. Louis."

Reid was in the hospital for treatment of epilepsy, still was at large this morning. Also missing was a non-prisoner patient from the 50-bed ward in which Reid was held.

John A. Jaack, 77, a guard hired by the sheriff's office to watch Reid, said the prisoner and the other patient jumped from the window.

The six-foot, 197-pound Reid was reported to be barefoot when he escaped. He was arrested Nov. 15 when Samuel Norbert Reese and Dillard Wren, charged with the murder of a hotel clerk, named Reid as their lookout in a liquor store holdup.

Among the robberies in which Reid was charged was the $3,000 holdup of the National Auction Galleries here Nov. 4. Two masked gunmen terrorized several customers by firing several shots in the air during the holdup of the galleries.

U. S. Has Plenty Of Oil, Reports Petroleum Leader

CHICAGO — (AP) — The United States "need never be short of horsepower" mostly because this country is not "running out of oil," a spokesman for the Independent Petroleum Association of America said today.

Russell B. Brown, Washington, D. C., general counsel for the association, in an address prepared for delivery to a special petroleum conference of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives said that discovered reserves of crude petroleum today stand at an all-time high. He said these reserves amount to 31,000,000,000 barrels, compared to 23,500,000,000 barrels at the end of World War II.

Record Throngs Visit Parks

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — Illinois state parks were visited by record throngs in 1951. Attendance figures issued today showed that 10,784,090 persons used the state recreational facilities. This was 18 per cent over 1950, when the previous high was established.

Illinois Beach state park, situated on Lake Michigan between Waukegan and Zion, attracted more than 1,500,000 visitors, displacing Starved Rock park as the most popular outing site in the state system.

Baptist Pastor Reports Threats

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. —(AP)—A Baptist pastor reported two more telephoned threats at his church last night.

Rev. G. E. Hodges, whose secretary said Friday an anonymous caller threatened him and his church with "the same thing as happened in Mims, Fla.," has been given police protection. (Negro Leader Harry T. Moore and his wife were fatally injured by a bomb at Mims Christmas night.)

Yesterday's calls, two minutes apart, were taken by John Douglas, an usher in the church, Rev. Hodges said.

Four city policemen and two county officials stood by at tonight's service, when 2,000 crowded into the Beaver Street Baptist church to hear Rev. Hodges give his promised answer to the threats. He called the anonymous callers

"yellow livered devils who don't have the nerve to show their hides."

Asked if he thought the calls more likely came from a crank or someone seriously threatening him, Rev. Hodges said he couldn't tell but he has a feeling it might be someone connected with Communism.

RE-SHUFFLE CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Government contracts are being reshuffled to help communities where civilian production cutbacks have put workers out of jobs.

Defense production administrator Manly Fleischmann announced over the weekend government contracts are being shifted about to help hard-hit areas, even though in some cases it costs more money.

The first area to receive such help is Detroit, where automobile production curtailment has caused serious unemployment.

Fire Destroys Old Landmarks

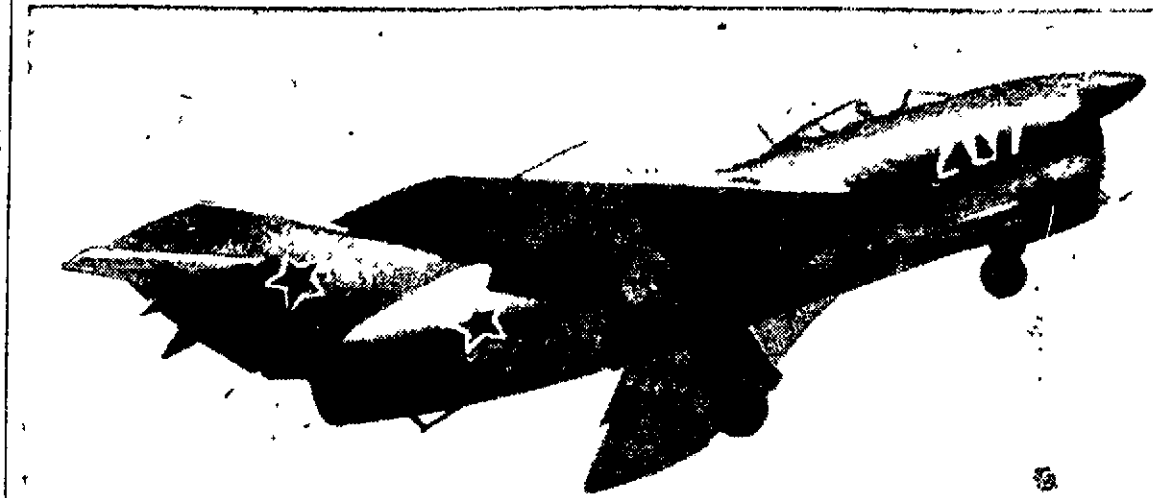

HARRISBURG — (AP) — A spectacular fire burning out of control nearly three hours today swept two old landmark buildings on Harrisburg's main square. Loss was estimated at more than $17,000.

Fireman Frank Patterson said one apartment resident, Daniel Davis, 75, escaped but went back after his shoes and was overcome by gas. Firemen carried him down a ladder. Three others escaped over the roof and down a ladder with firemen's help.

The unexplained fire razed two structures known as the Kresge and old Kroger buildings.

CLEAN GETAWAY

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Filthy lure? Not the $268 a burglar got at Mrs. Cleo Adair's house. She told police she had spread it out on her ironing board to dry after it went through a washing with some clothes.

BIGGER MIG FOR NIGHT WORK?—This photo of an airborne Russian MIG-15 jet shows the craft now has extra bulges around the nose, virtually confirming Western fears that the Soviets are equipping their Korea-tested fighter with radar. Such equipment would adapt it to night interceptor missions. Picture was taken at East German airport and printed in Aviation Age magazine.

Don Laz Soars 15-3 to Best Bob Richards

NEW YORK —(AP)—Don Laz still has the track world buzzing today over his 15-foot, 3-inch pole vault effort at the Washington Star meet Saturday night.

Laz missed three times in an attempt to break the world's record held by Cornelius Warmerdam—15 feet, 8 inches—but the vault he did make was good for a new meet record and also meant defeat for Bob (Parson) Richards for the first time in 51 straight tests.

Richards could do no better than 14 feet, 8 inches. Both Laz and Richards are former University of Illinois athletes.

In other track action this week, Don Gehrman and Fred Wilt renew their mile feud in the Philadelphia Inquirer games Friday and to judge them by warmup tests they ought to finish in almost a dead heat.

Gehrman, who won nine of the 11 races the pair had last year, ran 4:11 flat in the Washington Star games Saturday while Wilt, performing in the Metropolitan AAU senior games, broke the tape in 4:14.6. Wilt was slowed somewhat by a pickup at the start and thinks he lost about five seconds. Both were run on flat boards.

FUN AT EIGHTY—Miss Mabelle Cutter of Jaffrey Center, N. H., celebrates her 80th birthday by coasting down the hill in front of her home. Miss Cutter still prefers the prone style of sledding that she first learned 70 years ago. "Dignity be hanged," she says. Another of her diversions is mountain climbing, using snowshoes.

TWO DIE IN FIRE

CINCINNATI — (AP) — An early Sunday morning fire at Cincinnati's 600-room Hotel Sinton sent frightened guests surrying for any exit they could find and caused the death of two air force privates.

Two firemen and seven persons rooming at the hotel were injured. The fire itself was confined to a linen room on the second floor but smoke filled the upper floors.

Churchill Will Extend U. S. Stay

LONDON, (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill has extended his stay in the United States by about four days, official sources said today.

The decision stirred speculation that Churchill renew talks—at least informally—with American leaders in Washington.

Churchill and his party now are in Canada.

COALITION

RYE, N. H. —(AP)—Two state representatives—one a Democrat and the other a Republican—are now husband and wife.

Mrs. Pauline Miller, 47, a Fitzwilliams Republican, and William Maynard, 70, a Nashua Democrat, were married at the Bethany Congregational church yesterday.

The British Empire produces 70 per cent of the tea consumed throughout the world annually.

Alabama has 4742 miles of railroads, Mississippi 3762 miles.

Demaret Winner In Bing's Meet

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. —(AP)—Bing Crosby's national pro-amateur golf tournament, a $10,000 event with a million dollar cast, goes down in sports history as the battle of the big wind, torrential rains and a fruitless struggle with par.

Colorful Jimmy Demaret, the transplanted Texan now operating out of Ojai, Calif., won the event yesterday with a 36-hole total of 145. It was a one-over-par figure.

The 1952 version of the yearly tournament, the profits of which revert to charity, was beset by stormy weather from the start.

The victory was worth $2,000. Demaret pocketed an additional $500 by finishing third in the pro-amateur competition with comedian Bob Hope. They scored a best-ball of 70-64—134.

Navy Can Carry A-Bomb 770 Miles

WASHINGTON—(AP)—United States navy aircraft can take off from a carrier any place in the world, drop an atomic bomb 770 miles away and return. Vice Admiral John H. Cassaday said today.

The deputy chief of naval operations for air made the statement in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report, a weekly news magazine.

ANOTHER STAY PUTTER

DEAL, England — (AP) — A lifeboat landed 37 cremen from the wrecked French Steam Agen today and then returned and persuaded the skipper to leave the ship.

The captain, Maurice Landidau, 42, refused to go ashore when the lifeboat took off the rest of the crew, but entered the lifeboat when it returned.

The 4,196-ton Agen ran aground late last night on the treacherous Goodwin sands and broke in two.
